EUOC - Scottish University Relay and Individual Championships

Well done to the teams of Edinburgh University for their dominant performance at Bantaskine near Stirling, where they easily won the relays.

EUOC took the first 6 places in the competition, and it was good to see several WCOOC students performing so well. Joe Hudd lead off the winning EUOC team with Joe Sunley on 3rd leg. Niamh Hunter (collecting the trophy as Club captain) ran third leg for the team that finished in 3rd and Jonty Goodwin ran middle leg for the EUOC team that finished 5th.

Today there were further strong performances in the individual event meaning that EUOC are this year's Scottish University Champions.

A great weekend of orienteering in South Lakes,

UK Elite Orienteering League is in South Lakeland.

Masterplan Adventure invites you to the 6th Lakeland Warrior weekend, comprising top-quality middle distance orienteering in the challenging terrain of the Lake District, using lidar-remapped and partly new areas.

The fast but technical Great Tower hosts Saturday, previously used for British Night Champs, JWOC Terrain Time Trial and Euromeeting. Sunday is rougher and tougher at Grizedale/Graythwaite on a newly expanded map.

Both races are World Ranking Events so good runs will both improve your start position in future WREs and give Great Britain crucial points in the international rankings which could lead to more World Cup spots next season. Your country needs you.

The Lakeland Warrior is proudly sponsored by Kong Running, based in Keswick, who are offering the following vouchers £30, £20, £10 for the top 3, £15 for first Juniors and an overall prize of £40.

A small village has made map reading history and become the first place where true, magnetic and grid north have met at a single point.

According to the Ordnance Survey (OS) the historic triple alignment made landfall in Langton Matravers, near Swanage in Dorset, on Wednesday.

It will stay converged for three and a half years as it travels through the UK.

OS spokesman Mark Greaves said it was not related to climate change. Records held by the OS, Britain's national mapping service, date back to the 1930s but Mr Greaves said this was the "first time ever in British mapping history" the three norths had aligned.

"Magnetic north has a habit of wandering around, but this is unusual, it's not been in this orientation for hundreds of years," he added.

(Thanks to John Slater for sharing this interesting article which can be found by going to the link- <https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-england-dorset-63475943>). Not sure whether this will affect your orienteering but better to be safe than sorry!
